The purpose of this research is to investigate the legality of political buzzer acts from an Islamic law viewpoint, as well as the detrimental influence of the presence of a political buzzer on the Muslim community. The literature review approach is used in this study to describe the notion of the political buzzer: Islamic law and its influence on Muslim society. The documentation approach was utilized in this study to collect data. This study employs a content analysis approach provided in the form of a narrative review to investigate themes relating to political buzzwords: Islamic law and its influence on Muslim society. An major conclusion from extensive study was that it is mubah (legal) for a political buzzer to promote the skill, expertise of a candidate for leadership or a specific regional head. Meanwhile, political buzzers who invent and propagate falsehoods, hate speech, and black campaigns are haram (illegal) and absolutely forbidden. Political buzzers have a detrimental influence on the Muslim community because they frequently publish content in the form of false news, black campaigns, and defamation against political opponents.
