TITLE

The Lion and the Mouse

Orientation :

In the middle of dense forest lived a majestic lion, feared by all the animals. In the same forest, there also lived a small, cute mouse that was always careful not to get caught by larger animals.

Complication

One day, the lion got trapped in a strong hunter's net. He struggled hard to free himself but couldn't succeed. His roars were heard by the mouse who happened to be nearby. The mouse remembered the kindness the lion had shown by sparing his life once before. With strong determination, the mouse began to gnaw at the net. It took a lot of time and effort, but eventually, the mouse managed to cut through the ropes and free the lion.

Resolution

The lion was very grateful to the mouse. He realized that although small, the mouse possessed great courage and a kind heart. From then on, the lion and the mouse became good friends, and the other animals in the forest learned that every creature, no matter how small, can provide great help when needed.

TITLE

Ant and caterpillar : A tale of compromise

Orientation

On a sunny afternoon, under the shade of a tall tree, lived an ant and a caterpillar. The ant was busy collecting food for its colony, while the caterpillar slowly munched on the tree's leaves.

Complication

One day, the ant noticed the caterpillar eating its favorite leaf.

"Hey, caterpillar! Stop eating that leaf! My colony and I need those leaves for shelter," shouted the ant angrily.

The caterpillar paused its eating and replied, "But I need to eat too, ant. It's the only way I can survive." The argument between the ant and the caterpillar grew heated. The ant gathered its friends to drive the caterpillar away, while the caterpillar tried to defend itself. The tree stood silently, witnessing their endless quarrel.

Resolution

Seeing this, a wise old owl flew down and asked, "Why are you two fighting?"

The ant and the caterpillar explained their problems. The owl thought for a moment and said, "Ant, you can gather food from the ground below the tree, and caterpillar, you can eat the leaves from the higher branches. You both can live together without fighting." The ant and the caterpillar agreed and followed the owl's advice. They lived peacefully on the same tree, respecting and understanding each other's needs. From that day on, the ant and the caterpillar became good friends, proving that with a little compromise, even the biggest problems can be solved peacefully.
